NEW WINDOWS ON JUSTICE

OSGOODE BUILDING LAUNCH 2011-2012

After two years of dislocation I can tell you that we are all thrilled to move back to our newly renovated building. The Ignat Kaneff Building is truly magnificent and will mean more than space and light and new classrooms. The walls of brick, ceiling tiles holding back asbestos and smoke-filled, dimly lit JCR of my Osgoode days are now truly just a memory (although a happy one in the case of the dimly lit JCR, which facilitated a host of relationships that could never have come to be in the glare of the new JCR's floor-to-ceiling windows). The new building will not only transform the law school experience for Osgoode's students, but also be the setting for a whole new set of memories that will make Osgoode's newest house their home.

The building not only represents a state-of-the-art facility for teaching, research and academic life, but also now reflects our values as well:

- Achieving LEED Silver Certification reflects our commitment to sustainability;
- Our building exceeds current accessibility standards and reflects our commitment to an inclusive community;
- The Law Library, although half the size of its former self, boasts a richer and more diverse collection of both physical and digital legal materials than ever before to support Osgoode's ambitious research culture;
- The building now features a number of lounges and meeting areas in addition to a fully wired environment throughout. The architecture reflects a shared focus on physical and virtual connectivity.

The building also stands as a testament to the support and vision of hundreds of donors, from among our alumni and beyond. The Building Osgoode Campaign, which came to a close last Fall, represented an enormous landmark for Osgoode, not just as the largest and most successful campaign any Canadian law school had ever undertaken, but as a tangible demonstration of commitment to Osgoode's distinct approach to legal education, its role in the community, and its role in the world. This edition of the Osgoode Brief highlights and celebrates the donations for the past year. Without this amazing support, Osgoode would simply be another law school.

The revitalized building serves as a metaphor for Osgoode's programs and priorities. More than ever before, Osgoode is focused on engagement. The fact that every Osgoode classroom has windows, and that Osgoode's newest wing is a mix of skylights and dramatic floor-to-ceiling glass is no accident. The new architecture mirrors Osgoode's new focus on seeing beyond its walls, and finding new ways for the Law School's accomplishments in research and teaching to be transparent to those peering in. This engagement is reflected in:

- Innovative partnerships with organizations like the Centre for Addiction and Mental Health (CAMH), the Canadian Forces Judge Advocate General (JAG), and the Society of Ontario Adjudicators and Regulators (SOAR).
- New intensive programs in Anti-discrimination Law and Intellectual Property Law coming on stream this year.
- Commencing next year, all students will complete a clinical, intensive or simulated course during their legal studies. It is with pride that in 2011, Osgoode became the first Canadian law school to recognize experiential learning as a required element of the JD program.

For all of these reasons, we hope you join Osgoode in its pursuit of "New Windows on Justice" during this launch year, including our Osgoode Building Celebration on October 16, 2011, for details visit <http://www.osgoode.yorku.ca/renovation>. Professor Trevor Farrow to Lead Five-Year Research Project on Cost of Justice

AKA Photography

Professor Trevor Farrow

The Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council (SSHRC) has awarded a $1 million grant over five years to the Canadian Forum on Civil Justice in the Community-University Research Alliances Program (CURA) 2010 competition.

The Forum, which moved to York last year from the University of Alberta's Faculty of Law and is partnered with Osgoode Hall Law School and the York Centre for Public Policy & Law (YCPPL), is one of the country's leading organizations devoted to interdisciplinary research on civil justice.

Osgoode Professor Trevor Farrow, Director of the Clinical Education Program at Osgoode and Chair of the Board of the Canadian Forum on Civil Justice, is the Award Holder and Principal Investigator of this important and innovative project called "The Cost of Justice: Weighing the Costs of Fair and Effective Resolution to Legal Problems."

He is joined on the lead research team by Co-Investigators Diana Lowe, Q.C. of Alberta Justice and Chair of the Forum's research committee, Professor Lesley Jacobs of York's Faculty of Liberal Arts & Professional Studies who was also the inaugural Director of YCPPL, and Mary Stratton who was formerly the Forum's research director. In addition, there are approximately 50 other co-investigators, collaborators and partners including academics, government departments, law commissions, law reform agencies, law societies, bar associations, judicial associations and other individuals and institutes from around the world.

The two main questions the researchers will examine are: What does it cost to deliver civil justice? And what does it cost to not deliver civil justice? Both questions will be looked at in terms of costs to individuals as well as to society.

"There is a significant lack of empirical research on these individual and societal cost questions generally," Farrow said. "There have been modest attempts internationally and some efforts in Canada, but we very much hope that this will be a groundbreaking study that will really further our collective thinking in this area."

Dean Lorne Sossin described the study as "an extremely ambitious research project that will lead to new knowledge about the costs of justice in Canada and which, in turn, will no doubt drive academic and policy-related thinking here at home and around the world."

The Thomas Brown Phillips Stewart Society

Thomas Brown Phillips Stewart (1865–1892) was a barrister and poet who died at the early age of 27. He left a portion of his estate to establish a student library at Osgoode Hall, which later became the largest law library in Canada.

The Thomas Brown Phillips Stewart Society was created to commemorate Thomas Brown Phillips Stewart as Osgoode's first benefactor and to honour all those who, like this generous young man, made Osgoode Hall Law School a part of their legacy through a planned gift.

Membership in the Society is offered to those alumni and friends who wish to donate to Osgoode by means of a planned gift including charitable bequests, life insurance or other future arrangements. All members will be recognized annually in the Osgoode Hall Law School Report on Giving.

We would be pleased to discuss with donors and their advisors, the many areas within the Law School where bequests can be directed. We do appreciate the opportunity to review the terms of the Will (especially for specific bequests) before they are finalized, so we can confirm our ability to accept and fulfill the gift's intent.

For more information, please contact Anita Herrmann, Director, Office of Advancement at 416-736-5364 or aherrmann@osgoode.yorku.ca.

OSGOODE History & Archives PROJECT

REMEMBERING OUR PAST, PRESERVING OUR FUTURE

As Canada's first common law school, Osgoode Hall Law School's history reflects the development of legal education and ideas in Canada and beyond. Osgoode and its graduates played leading roles in Canada's political, legal and social history, from the birth of the welfare state to the Charter of Rights and Freedoms, from clinical legal education to scholarship in law and society, from the admission of the first woman to the Bar to the appointment of the first Canadian-born black judge. In October of 2011, we look forward to launching two exhibits in the Ignat Kaneff Building, Osgoode's newly renovated building:

- Catalysts – a digital exhibition of Osgoode pioneers who broke through barriers to become the “firsts” in making the legal community more inclusive; and
- Building Osgoode – a collection of photos, videos and blueprints which chronicle the making of Osgoode's building.

Support the Osgoode History & Archives Project and help us bring Osgoode's history to life for students and future generations. For more information: www.osgoode.yorku.ca/history-archives
